The third thaw of the last two weeks ended abruptly yesterday morning after an all-night rain. The change came just in time to save the winter roads for a large amount of bauling which remains to be done, and the general opinion is that a serious freshet was also averted. rapid was the rise of water that ice had gone out of some of the smaller streams and traffic was cut off all day on the new road near C. Will You Vote Yes for the County Tuberculosis Hospital?

Carefully compiled and conservative estimates show that tuberculosis costs the people of Washington county $168,800.00 annually in economic loss, plus $23,690.00 spent for the care of the sick, and this burden, almost $200,000.00 a year, falls largely on the shoulders of the worthy poor. Add to this the misery that cannot be estimated in dollars and cents.

The maintenance of the proposed hospital will be paid by the state and the construction by the county. By sharing now a little of the economic burden, you may save yourself from later bearing the far greater one. Place an X in the square under yes for the
